PARQUET

is a development of the old game Rummy, the difference being that the cards when played on the table are "parked" together, that is, played to the center of the table, instead of each player retaining his own cards in front of him. THE CARDS are laid down in four rows, one for each suit, the same Numbers being placed above or below each other in columns.

BY THIS METHOD

it becomes easier to add single cards, thus if one player has laid down 3-4-5 and another 5-6-7 the next player could add a 5 thus making three 5's.

HE COULD NOT

do this in Rummy as in that game each player's Cards when played are kept separate from the others and as each one has only one 5, the third player would have had to play two 5's to make a set.
